Purpose of Role:

This is a unique opportunity, sponsored by Neal's Yard Remedies, to develop and locate your post-doctoral research practice within the research aims and remit of Centre for Sustainable Fashion (CSF), a University of the Arts Research Centre based at London College of Fashion (LCF). Within the context of fashion, you will investigate design activism as part of the field of study of design for sustainability and contribute to related CSF projects. You will use practice-based research to define and extend understanding of design activism in fashion and develop research projects, methods and outcomes that will contribute to the profile of CSF and LCF both nationally and internationally. The role will also involve contributing to the development of curricula and student teaching and learning in these fields. The post will support outcomes and impacts of the College and contribute to its events as required.

Duties and Responsibilities

- Develop an agreed post-doctoral level research within the framework of the College's identified research aims and areas of interest aligned to the work of Centre for Sustainable Fashion (CSF)
- Contribute to the planning of and inclusion in external funding applications to support research at the College.
- Contribute to the academic research profile of Centre for Sustainable Fashion, through participation at relevant national and international forums, and through participation at university conferences and events.
- Contribute to doctoral and other research activities of CSF, College, University, other Universities and, when relevant, with industry.
- Work closely with CSF director and College research managers in planning the delivery of College research strategic aims and objectives.
- To publicise your work in international conferences and publish regularly in refereed journals or books highly regarded by peers.
- To continue to develop research in your own field.
- To manage research projects and staff as appropriate.
- To participate in and contribute to the development of a mutually supportive network of researchers within the College/University.
- To contribute to teaching and to curriculum design and development in the relevant discipline.
- To perform such duties consistent with your role as may from time to time be assigned to you anywhere within the University
- To undertake health and safety duties and responsibilities appropriate to the role
- To work in accordance with the University's Equal Opportunities Policy and the Staff Charter, promoting equality and diversity in your work
- To undertake continuous personal and professional development, and to support it for any staff you manage through effective use of the University's Planning, Review and Appraisal scheme and staff development opportunities
- To make full use of all information and communication technologies in adherence to data protection policies to meet the requirements of the role and to promote organisational effectiveness
- To conduct all financial matters associated with the role in accordance with the University's policies and procedures, as laid down in the Financial Regulations
